Everstream Acquires Arch Fiber Networks

Last week, Everstream announced it has acquired Arch Fiber Networks, considered a premier source for high-bandwidth connectivity needs and the only purpose-built dark fiber network in St. Louis, Missouri. The transaction includes a 75-mile conduit system with 55 route miles of fiber. The additional 20 miles of ducts are fiber-ready.

This acquisition is part of Everstream's plans to invest \$300 million into its fiber network by building dense metro fiber networks in 12 markets, including St. Louis, Missouri. Seventy-one buildings will have immediate access to Everstream's high-speed, low-latency Business Fiber Network. In total, 32 buildings are fiber-ready and 39 are considered on-net-ready with conduit fed to the site.
